Student feedback from a few of our virtual programmes:

“The wellbeing section [was my favourite part of the day] as I think it's very important to be reminded about how it affects you as well as it raising awareness.” (Social Mobility Business Partnership)

“The break-out room exercise was great, really let me network with new people and meet professionals and be able to get their advice.” (Social Mobility Business Partnership)

“The smaller group session where we discussed a client scenario, because it was interactive and a great way to meet people. It was also really interesting to engage in a real life scenario and gave me an insight into the kind of work PwC do.” (Social Mobility Business Partnership)

“I wanted to say a huge thank you for this opportunity. It gave me a great insight into the work that you do and improved my teamwork, confidence, creative thinking and problem solving. These were the things I hoped I would get out of this work experience and I did. The resources shared were very interesting and enjoyable. Thank you.” (Speakers for Schools)

“I appreciate the S4S team for organising this placement and PwC for hosting a wonderful and insightful experience, I've learnt so much from the talk and working with other students on the group project and I will be sure to take on all the knowledge I have gained from the past 4 days.” (Speakers for Schools)

Feedback on our Refugees Employability Skills programme

Coverage of the programme, shortly after its launch: PwC Annual Report

Holly Asquith (Employer Engagement Manager @ Refugee Council):

“We’re thrilled to be working with PwC over the next 12 months to deliver vital employability services to our clients. Refugees have so much to contribute to the UK, but they need support to get them started. We all know that COVID-19 has increased isolation for some of those most vulnerable in society, including refugees, and has exacerbated pressure on charities. We cannot do this alone, and are so grateful to PwC for continuing to push for social mobility and collaborating with us to achieve meaningful change”
